Executive Summary

‘The State of Right to Information in Pakistan’, research study conducted every year by Centre for Peace and Development Initiatives, (CPDI) reveals that though Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013 meet international standards of right to information legislation, citizens right of access to information held by public bodies for attainment of their fundamental and basic rights will remain pipe-dream until and unless respective information commission in these provinces do not play their role in a proactive manner for the implementation of the provisions of these laws. In this research study spanning almost a year, CPDI sent 1117 information requests on matters of public importance to federal and provincial public bodies under their respective laws from July 01, 2013 to July 25, 2014. These information requests were followed-up at all stages and complaints were lodged with the respective appellate bodies when access to requested information was delayed or unlawfully denied. The purpose of submitting information request to public bodies was to collect empirical evidence about the level of effectiveness of existing right to information laws and promote research based advocacy initiatives for demanding the enactment of effective RTI laws and reforming/repealing existing RTI laws. The fact that information was provided in case of only 97 information requests out of a total of 1117 shows that the low priority of public bodies in terms of responding to information requests. Of these, 46 information requests were submitted to federal public bodies under Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 and information was provided only in case of two information requests. Four information requests were submitted to Sindh public bodies under Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006 and information was not provided by any of the public body. No information request could be filed under Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005 as it is logistically difficult to first deposit Rs. 50 in National Bank branch situated in Balochistan province. In case of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa public bodies, a total of 378 information requests were submitted under Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and information was provided in case of 64 information requests. In case of Punjab public bodies, a total of 689 information requests were submitted under Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013 and information was provided in case of 31 information requests. A total of 9 complaints were lodged with Federal Ombudsman and 2 with Sindh Ombudsman. A total of 75 complaints have been lodged with Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Information Commission but so far it has intervened in the case of only 1 information request filed to Chief Minister’s Secretariat. Out of a total of 363 complaints lodged, Punjab Information Commission has asked 35 public bodies to provide the requested information out of which 6 public bodies have provided the requested information. The research study recommends that Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 and its replicas in Sindh and Balochistan in the shape of Sindh Freedom of Information Ordinance 2006 and Balochistan Freedom of Information 2005 need to be repealed and new laws should be enacted. Punjab and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa commissions should ensure implementation of sections pertaining to the proactive disclosure of information so that maximum information is available in the public domain. Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013 be amended and head of public body should be made responsible to act as Public Information Officer in the absence or unavailability of the Public Information Officer. Punjab Information Commission and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Information Commission should train public officials and launch awareness raising campaigns about right to information. These information commissions should be given budgetary and administrative autonomy.

Introduction:

Centre for Peace and Development Initiatives, (CPDI) has been seeking information from public bodies under the existing right to information laws ever since its inception in 2005. The purpose of submitting information request to public bodies is to collect empirical evidence about the level of effectiveness of existing right to information laws and promote research based advocacy initiatives for demanding the enactment of effective RTI laws and reforming/repealing existing RTI laws. CPDI is a research based advocacy organization and as such believes that effectiveness or otherwise of right to information laws needs to be determined by a) juxtaposing these laws with the international standards and best practices of right to information laws and, b) by collecting Empirically verifiable data gathered through the paper trail generated by submitting information requests under these laws. This is the underlying principle behind this research study. Ever since the enactment of right to information laws in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Punjab, CPDI has started using Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013.

Chapter 1 Rationale and Methodology:

The research methodology consists of submitting information requests to public bodies under existing right to information laws to determine their level of effectiveness and on the analysis of these right to information laws. Analysis of following right to information laws has been carried out by juxtaposing them with the international standards of right to information legislation.

Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002

Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005

Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013

Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013

Objective:

To promote research based advocacy initiatives for demanding the enactment of effective RTI laws and reforming/repealing existing RTI laws.

Methodology:

While conducting this report, three indicators pertaining to right to information legislation i.e. effectiveness of law, provision of information on-demand and role of appellate bodies were studied.

Effectiveness of Law:

Following factors were studied in this report pertaining to effectiveness of right to information legislation.

1. Law is guided by the principle of maximum disclosure;
2. Exceptions are clearly and narrowly drawn;
3. Law provides cost effective access to information;
4. Law provides for speedy access to information;
5. In case the information is denied or delayed, there is an easy process of lodging complaints;
6. Law imposes penalty on the officer for wrongfully denying/delaying access to the requested information;
7. Law requires proactive disclosure;
8. Law does not require description of specific interest with information requested;
9. Law recognizes the willful destruction of records as a criminal offense;
10. Right to Information law takes precedence over all other laws contradicting its aim;
11. Law has provisions that allows Inspection of documents before getting access;
12. Law requires it as a duty of information officer to assist applicant;
13. Law makes head of public body responsible to act as Public Information Officer in the absence or unavailability of Public Information Officer.

Provision of Information on Demand:

This report also studies the responsiveness of the government departments in fulfilling their required obligations of providing timely and accurate access to the requested information as per legal obligations. In this connection, following points were considered.

1. Requested information was provided by the information officer within time period mentioned in the law);
2. A valid reason for denial of information was provided in writing within time period mentioned in the law;

Role of Appellate Bodies:

Following factors were taken into consideration while studying the effectiveness of appellate bodies at three tiers of the government.

1. The appellate body decided the complaint within reasonable time.
2. Information was provided on the intervention of the appellate body

In this research study spanning almost a year, CPDI sent 1117 information requests on matters of public importance to federal and provincial public bodies under their respective laws from July 01, 2013 to July 25, 2014. These information requests were followed-up at all stages and complaints were lodged with the respective appellate bodies when access to requested information was delayed or unlawfully denied.

Chapter 2 Effectiveness of Legal Regime on Right to Information

The existing right to information laws at three tiers of government were studied against the variables mentioned in methodology section of this report developed in line with right to information principles developed by Article 19.

The following laws were studied for the purpose of this study.

- Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002
- Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005
- Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006
- Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013
- Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013

Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 (FOIO 2002) is applicable to the federal public bodies. As the following table shows, the Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 fails on key questions pertaining to the effectiveness of right to information legislation.

The performance of the RTI laws of Sindh and Balochistan is exactly the same as Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005 and Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006 are the exact replicas of FOIO 2002. As the following table shows, provinces of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Punjab introduced progressive and robust right to information laws in 2013 in the shape of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013. Under all these provincial right to information laws, citizens can have access to information from district public bodies as well.

Each question is scored from a numerical range of 0 to 10, where 0 equates “doesn’t meet the provision”, and 10 equates “completely follows the provision”. The numerical scale is further divided in subsets of three: the first range 0 -3 represents “no or very low following of the provision; the second range 4- 7 shows “medium level of representation”; while the last 8 – 10 range shows a very good or maximum level of meeting the criteria taken from either the RTI Acts or used as an additional to further assess the website.

Chapter 3 On-demand Provision of Information

When it comes to the implementation of these laws, the study depicts an abysmal picture. Out of 1117 information requests submitted at all tiers of government, only 97 public bodies provided the requested information. Of these, 46 information requests were submitted to federal public bodies under Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 and information was provided only in case of two information requests. Four information requests were submitted to Sindh public bodies under Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006 and information was not provided by any of the public body. In case of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa public bodies, a total of 378 information requests were submitted under Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and information was provided in case of 64 information requests. In case of Punjab public bodies, a total of 689 information requests were submitted under Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013 and information was provided in case of 31 information requests.

Total	1117	97

Chapter 4 Effectiveness of Appellate Bodies

In cases where information requests were delayed or denied, complaints were lodged with respective appellate bodies. It is interesting to note that the office Ombudsman has failed to respond to any of the complaints lodged whereas information commissions have started playing their role in terms of providing access to information. A total of 9 complaints were lodged with Federal Ombudsman and 2 with Sindh Ombudsman. A total of 75 complaints lodged with Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Information Commission where more than one month has elapsed, so far it has intervened in the case of only 1 information request filed to Chief Minister's Secretariat. Out of a total of 363 complaints lodged, Punjab Information Commission has asked 35 public bodies to provide the requested information out of which 6 public bodies have provided the requested information.

Chapter 5 Finding and Recommendations

Following are key findings of this research study.

- The fact that only 46 information requests were filed under Freedom of Information Act 2002, 4 under Sindh Freedom of Information Act 2006 and none under Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005 shows that the process of filing information requests under these laws is not easy one when compared with Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Punjab right to information laws.
- No information request could be filed under Balochistan Freedom of Information Act 2005 as it is logistically difficult to first deposit Rs. 50 in National Bank branch situated in Balochistan province.
- As many as 378 information requests could be submitted to Khyber Pakhtunkhwa public bodies and 689 in case of Punjab public bodies shows that the process of filing information requests is easy one in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Right to Information Act 2013 and Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013.
- The fact that information was provided in case of only 97 information requests out of a total of 1117 shows that the low priority of public bodies in terms of responding to information requests.
- Ombudsman is a toothless appellate body as it did not intervene when complaint was launched against public bodies for delaying or denying access to information.

Recommendations:

1. The Freedom of Information Ordinance 2002 and its replicas in Sindh and Balochistan in the shape of Sindh Freedom of Information Ordinance 2006 and Balochistan Freedom of Information 2005 need to be repealed and new laws should be enacted.
2. Punjab and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa commissions should ensure implementation of sections pertaining to the proactive disclosure of information so that maximum information is available in the public domain.
3. Punjab Transparency and Right to Information Act 2013 be amended and head of public body should be made responsible to act as Public Information Officer in the absence or unavailability of the Public Information Officer.
4. Punjab Information Commission and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Information Commission should train public officials and launch awareness raising campaigns about right to information.
